

We must start building. Today.

Newfoundland and Labrador can start building an exciting future. Today.

We have the resources, the people, the skills and the desire. All we need is a government committed to the task. We don't have that now. And we didn't have it with the Liberals.

But we don't have a lot of time. More than 13,000 people moved away from our province in the past year. That's tragic. And it hurts all of us.

We must, immediately, grab hold of our own destiny. And we must steer it in a direction which will benefit Newfoundland and Labrador.

We must reap the benefits of our forests, fishing industry and mining. We can do it. Today.

We owe it to ourselves to make these important decisions — and not depend on outsiders. But most of all, we owe it to the generation who will inherit our decisions.

That generation is with us now. They are our children. And they're moving away.

Newfoundland and Labrador can't afford to wait until tomorrow.

I pledge to work hard for our province. Today.

Sincerely,

Peter Fenwick,
Leader,
Newfoundland and Labrador NDP

Who is the NDP?

We're a party of people like you - your neighbours and friends, people who work with you. We get our ideas from people like you and our money too, because that's the only way a political party can be sure it represents everyone, not just the special interests. That's why the NDP needs your support. We'd like to know how you feel. The Liberals and Conservatives promise it will be better tomorrow.
That's what they said yesterday, too.

Newfoundland and Labrador doesn't need more promises. Our province needs more jobs. Today.

More than 13,000 people have moved away in the past year. And that will continue to happen until we have jobs in this province to keep our people at home.

Right now, one in every three workers can't find a job to go to. That can't be allowed to continue. Something has to be done, today.

And those of us who are still working pay the highest prices in Canada for things we need to survive: food, clothing, transportation.

But we can turn all that around — by electing people who will get down to work. Today. With the NDP, we can reap benefits from our forests. We can increase the yield from our fishing industry. We can boost tourism. We can rely on our known resources.

Let's keep the profits from our resources here, and turn them into jobs.

When we begin to get our fair share of the province's resources, we can have the kinds of services other Canadians take for granted — better health care, better educational opportunities for our young people. We can afford to protect homeowners from exorbitant interest rates.

We can do all this in Newfoundland and Labrador beginning today. We can do it with votes for the NDP.

Tell them you've had enough empty promises. Vote for jobs and opportunity.
